

PREPARING FOR YOUR IN-HOME

Maternity Session

CONSIDER YOUR STYLE

Think about the style of photos you are hoping for from your maternity session. From candid snaps in comfy loungewear through to beautiful portraits in flowing dresses, or a combination of both!

Some mums-to-be also like to opt for a few subtle boudoir-style shots during their maternity session which can be really beautiful and empowering; think a loose shirt, cardigan or robe over some pretty underwear to show off that gorgeous bump.

CHOOSE YOUR OUTFIT

Once you've decided on your style, it's time to think outfits! I often advise starting with a casual, comfy outfit for the first part of your session with the option to change into a maternity dress for some portraits. I have a client wardrobe with a small selection of dresses which my clients are welcome to wear for their session.

Not sure what to choose? Feel free to take some photos of your options and send them over, I'm happy to advise!

HAVE A QUICK TIDY

Please don't worry, there is no need to spring clean your entire home! Just a quick tidy around the main areas we are likely to photograph in (usually master bedroom, nursery or living room) to remove any clutter is more than enough. Think making the bed, clearing bedside tables and opening any curtains and blinds to let in all that lovely, natural light.

RELAX AND ENJOY YOUR SESSION

I aim to make you feel completely comfortable and at ease during your shoot, I will guide you through the session so you won't need to think about a thing! I'm all about capturing those natural, authentic moments to document this special time in your life.
